- 報告 Report :

The IEL mainly consisted of two parts; (1) Presentation practice for ACCS2020 by Maximilien Berthet (Max), (2) Q&A session. In the first part, Max gave the whole presentation which included the background, the whole picture of the previous SIP activity in 2019, causes of leaky pipelines, and solutions for each cause. In the second part, various questions and opinions were given by the participants.

In this IEL, many people from different institutions participated. Some GSDM faculty members, interviewees who cooperated with the SIP, IFI faculty members Prof. Hanai introduced, and Sasakawa Peace Foundation researches Ms. Lockman introduced, in addition to GSDM students.

Regarding the content of questions and opinions, almost every participant seemed to focus on the solution part. More detailed explanation for each solution and discussion about the feasibility in the financial perspective were required. Since the most important value of the work was starting discussion about gender inside UTokyo, that point should be emphasized in addition to the first two points.

Based on the feedback the SIP obtained through this IEL, the new SIP members discussed what should be updated and what they should do in 2020. The diversity of IEL participants reminded the SIP members that there has been a growing interest in the topic.
